Headteacher's Notes

Dear parents/carers,

As always, we have had plenty going on at school this week.

With it being Remembrance Day on Monday, the majority of our children observed a 2-minute silence at 11 o'clock to remember the fallen. However, as our Year 6 parents already know, Mr Hall's class joined our network of schools at Lowe House Church to participate in our annual remembrance service. Whilst all children were very respectful, a special thank you must go to Luke and Lily for reading their poems at the podium.

It was also Anti-Bullying Week this week. We participated in Odd Socks Day which, as well as reminding us that being different is good, focused on the message that 'change starts with us'. The whole school studied a new book by Julia Donaldson called The Smeds and The Smoos – a story about two sets of aliens that do not mix. Our Year 5 and Year 6 children then compared this to Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

Yesterday, our Year 5 class headed to Saint Helens' rugby club to participate in Crucial Crew – a half-day series of life-saving activities.

As I write, our staff are getting prepared for our first disco of the year in support of Children in Need. I hope the children enjoy the event and will let you know how much we raised in next week's newsletter.

In the meantime, as always, have a great weekend,

Mr Spruce
